

Soviet trip looks good as blockade holds up

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Optimism over the prospects for President Nixon's trip to Moscow rose Friday as U.S. officials detected signals pointing to an apparent decision by Russia and China not to challenge the blockade of North Vietnamese ports for the time being.

The Defense Department reported that in addition to a Soviet freighter that changed course one day after the United States mined Haiphong harbor, "we think several more ships that were en route to Haiphong have diverted."

No mines have exploded at any of seven North Vietnamese ports, no ships have tried to leave or enter the ports since the mines were activated, and North Vietnam has made no effort to clear the mine fields, said Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim.

Highly placed U.S. government sources in Washington, Saigon and Phnom Penh expressed belief Friday that the Soviet Union and China may have reached a tacit agreement to refrain from running the blockade while vigorously denouncing it in diplomatic and propaganda channels.

There was speculation in some Southeast Asian capitals that the Russians and Chinese were confident that the two-day-old blockade would fail to dry up the flow of war supplies to North Vietnam, and that it would be pointless to risk an armed confrontation if the blockade eventually proves ineffective anyway.

"I don't think we're going to see anyone trying to go into any of the harbors or trying to remove the mines unless something extremely surprising happens," said one high Washington official.

Pentagon strategists seem equally confident that the mining and naval blockade will work to force Hanoi, faced with a cutoff of its source of supplies, to consider calling off its offensive in South Vietnam.

The general feeling here was that the Soviets do not want to cancel the summit, and the President was at Camp David, Md., for the weekend making preparations for his scheduled departure with Mrs. Nixon a week from Saturday, on May 22.

Nixon conferred by telephone with White House adviser Henry A. Kissinger and followed reports on military developments in Vietnam, where Communist forces captured the center of An Loc, the provincial capital of Long Binh province 60 miles northwest of Saigon.

UPI State Department reporter Nicholas Daniloff reported that Nixon himself might be leaving open the possibility of a last minute delay or cancellation of the Moscow trip. The reason, according to some speculation, was that he would be unlikely to proceed with his plans if the Communists managed a major military or psychological gain, such as seizing the city of Hue in South Vietnam.

"We're just going ahead day-by-day," one official said. "But we just don't know for certain whether there might be something else" in the way of a Communist response.

The optimism generated here was based on a variety of other signs, which included:

—Continuation of a number of Soviet-American contacts, including technical arrangements for the Nixon visit in Moscow, the arms limitation talks in Helsinki, and discussions on trade and avoidance of potentially dangerous maritime incidents, both under way in Washington.

—Soviet Defense Minister Andrei Grechko's arrival in Syria on Tuesday as previously scheduled. It was speculated that Grechko would not have left Moscow had the U.S. sea blockade produced a gathering military crisis.

—The relatively mild official Soviet government statement of Thursday protesting the blockade.

Protestors rampage in Frisco, capital

By United Press International

Police firing stun guns, swinging clubs and charging forward on horses Friday dispersed 5,000 shouting, rock-throwing antiwar demonstrators outside a San Francisco hotel where New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and California Gov. Ronald Reagan were appearing.

The angry protesters surged through the city's financial district smashing windows and yelling remonstrances against President Nixon's Vietnam policies.

Some 400 chanting demonstrators carried their protests to Capitol Hill in Washington and one band made a foray on a congressman's office.

Other protesters kept up blockading tactics at Princeton University and Westover Air Force Base in Massachusetts. National Guardsmen stood by near the University of Minnesota campus at Minneapolis, where quiet prevailed, and New Mexico Gov. Bruce King said arrangements had been made to mobilize National Guardsmen rapidly should a new outbreak on the University of New Mexico campus at Albuquerque make it necessary.

Since President Nixon Monday night announced the U.S. move to mine harbors of North Vietnam, more than 2,500 demonstrators have been arrested.

Twenty-seven persons were arrested for disorderly conduct as 500 University of Kansas students marched through downtown streets at Lawrence, Kan. Youngsters who appeared to be of junior high school age vandalized the campus ROTC building at the University. School photographers took pictures and the university chancellor said the school would prosecute.

At Kansas City, Mo., protesters blocked two of three bridges across the Missouri River for 20 minutes and four men who said they were Vietnam veterans occupied the roof of City Hall and vowed to stay there until the bombing of North Vietnam is stopped.

At least one person was injured in the melee in front of the St. Francis Hotel on San Francisco's Union Square. A police horse, apparently struck by a rock, lay on the street. Police blocked off Powell Street, halting its famed cable cars, and ordered pedestrians off the sidewalks, as the crowd spilled down the street into the financial district, hurling rocks through windows. Traffic was jammed for blocks around the Square.

Police said the upheaval was triggered when demonstrators set fire to a policeman's motorcycle. They reported that before the rally began, an arsenal of rocks and lengths of pipe was found in four big shopping bags in Union Square.

Antiwar groups in Miami said they would "mine" the waters off Nixon's Key Biscayne compound with balloons Saturday in protest against his decision to mine North Vietnamese ports. Chicago Seven defendant Jerry Rubin urged some 400 youths at a campus rally at the University of Miami to "put 500,000 people in the streets" during the Democratic convention at Miami Beach in July.

Reds reject offer

U.S. set to reopen talks

PARIS (UPI)—The United States said Friday it was ready to resume the on-again-off-again Vietnam peace talks if the Communists were ready to do some constructive bargaining. The Communists said no.

The United States made its offer in a special statement which strongly criticized the Communists for their alleged lack of willingness to work out a peaceful settlement.

Le Duc Tho, a Communist politburo member and chief negotiator for the North Vietnamese, said Hanoi would resume the talks only if the Americans refused to make any prior conditions.

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter, chief U.S. negotiator at the sessions, suspended the talks May 4, apparently after there was no headway in secret sessions between Tho and U.S. presidential adviser Henry Kissinger.

Porter said the United States and South Vietnam would resume the sessions if Hanoi and the Viet Cong indicate they are "seriously interested in negotiations on matters of substance."

"The Communist side, while demanding a resumption of the talks, is carefully avoiding any indication of flexibility or willingness to discuss both sides' positions."

"The American delegation regrets that the Communist side seems to prefer poisoning the atmosphere in Paris by issuing statements more noted for invective than constructive language," it said.

But Reds take provincial capital

S. Viets repulse drive near Saigon

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist troops knifed into a district capital 26 miles northwest of Saigon Friday but were quickly pushed back by South Vietnamese defenders in a six-hour fight. Tank-led communists have taken virtual control of the province capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, South Vietnamese spokesmen said.

The South Vietnamese command said the Communist troops struck Trang Bang along Highway 1, 10 miles from the Cambodian border, in a daring daylight assault. The attack was the closest to Saigon on any populated area since the North Vietnamese general offensive began March 30.

A communique said 29 Communists and eight South Vietnamese were killed and another seven government soldiers wounded before the Saigon troops could drive the attackers from the town.

The U.S. command diverted six waves of B52 bombers to support troops at An Loc overnight. They also dumped about 500 tons of high explosives in strikes within a mile of the Binh Long province capital.

Communist troops held virtually all of the city with the main force of South Vietnamese troops defending only the province and military headquarters at the southern edge, Saigon spokesmen said.

The year's first monsoon rain cut off all tactical air strikes in and around An Loc for a time this morning, but a military spokesman said the weather cleared and "we're really pouring it in on them." The B52s, which fly at 30,000 feet, are unaffected by the weather.

B52s and jet fighter-bombers Friday attacked near An Loc, where Communist forces had bottled up the remaining defenders inside a few crumbling buildings, but failed to blunt the Communist advance, even though at least 10 tanks were reported knocked out.

Military spokesmen also reported heavy fighting along Highway 13, 10 miles south of An Loc. They said 36 Communists were killed at a cost of two government soldiers slain and five wounded.

On a second major battlefront, the Central Highlands, North Vietnamese troops kidnapped the population of Plei Hung Khung, a small, lightly defended village of hill tribesmen, 10 miles east of Pleiku and 240 miles north of Saigon.

Medical care plea made

HARRISBURG — The Hospital Association of Pennsylvania made an urgent plea to the General Assembly Friday to provide funds to the Welfare Department so that medical assistance payments to hospitals can resume. Welfare Secretary Helene Wohlgenuth ordered the payments stopped Wednesday after the House refused to pass a $54 million emergency appropriation.

Free education for retarded set

HARRISBURG (UPI) — A statewide program to give all mentally retarded children a free public education was launched Friday by Gov. Milton J. Shapp and the Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Children (PARC).

Shapp promised that all children would have equal access to education by September and asked that the parents of mentally retarded children take advantage of his offer.

"With every step forward we take," Shapp told a meeting of 1,500 representatives of PARC and the state education and welfare departments, "we are establishing new standards for all states in the union in bringing the retarded into the mainstream of society."

"But before the Commonwealth can make good its commitment and educate all of its retarded children, it must find them. There are many all over Pennsylvania who have never come out in the open."

PARC filed suit against the state in January, 1971, charging that mentally retarded children were being denied the constitutionally guaranteed right to a free public program of education and training.

Rather than opposing the suit, the state entered into a consent agreement.

According to the agreement, no child will be transferred from a regular class to a special class without proper notice to the parents. Educational programs will be offered for all children from ages four to 21, and special instruction will be given to children who cannot leave home.

Shapp said the agreement also included a new policy that retarded children should be kept in the public schools if possible.

"It is our firm conviction that the education of mentally retarded children in special classes within the public school system will provide them with the most normative setting possible, thereby appreciably enhancing their chances for social self sufficiency," Shapp said.

GOSHEN, N.Y. — The question of whether to build the Tocks Island Dam may be put to another round of public hearings soon — this time by the Orange County Legislature.

The legislature's rules committee refused Friday to report out a bill that would condemn the entire $370 million project and put the county on record against the construction of the dam and installation of a sewer system to protect the proposed 37-mile reservoir that would stretch from Stroudsburg, Pa. to Port Jervis, N.Y.

Committee Chairman Herbert J. Fabricant instead submitted a report calling for gathering more information on Tocks Island and for public hearings on the project's environmental impact.

The hearings, which he estimated would last only one day, will be conducted by both the Rules and Physical Services Committees, the report stated, and both advocates and proponents would be invited to testify. Fabricant said the hearings are needed so his committee will have enough information to determine whether it should offer a bill that would set the county on record as being opposed to the project.

Legislator John B. Bright, who is one of the county's members of the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council, wanted the resolution condemning the project reported out Friday, because he said he wants the county on record against the project as quickly as possible.

At the legislature's April session, Bright submitted a lengthy position statement declaring his opposition to the dam, especially because of the multi-million dollar sewer system that will surround the reservoir.

The statement asked that the legislature take a position against the project at Friday's session. Bright refused comment on the rules committee's hearing proposal.

Fabricant said the committee decided the hearings are necessary because many of the statements made in Bright's position paper were misleading and others were false.

Tocks faces another go-around

Black mother wins honor

NEW YORK — A 75-year-old North Carolina mother of three Friday was named Mother of the Year, the second black woman to win the title in its 37-year history. Esther Hunt Moore, of Hickory, N.C., an educator, civic leader and grandmother of five whose own grandparents were slaves in Mississippi, was selected over mothers representing 50 states, Washington, D.C., and Puerto Rico.

Six shot in Belfast

BELFAST — Gunmen Friday night killed one man and wounded five others in Belfast's Roman Catholic Andersonstown area, the army said. An army spokesman said a British patrol in the area had reported an ambush by seven gunmen. In an exchange of fire, all but one gunman was hit.

Smoke hampers rescue

MONTEVIDEO — Smoke and oven-like temperatures below decks hampered firemen Friday in their search for the bodies of all 74 passengers and crewmen killed when fire gutted the British freighter Royston Grange. There was no hope of any survivors aboard the 10,292-ton vessel, involved in a collision in the River Plate Thursday with a Liberian tanker.

Mine's violations cited

KELLOGG, Idaho — Rescue crews worked Friday to recover the bodies of the last of the 91 miners who died in the Sunshine Silver Mine fire. In Washington, investigators for the Senate Labor Committee said the mining company had been cited for 14 fire safety violations over the past 21 months. They said a previous fire at the Sunshine mine was so severe operations had to be suspended for six weeks.

Gray gives FBI new look: Yes, women need apply

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Moving quickly to give the FBI a new look, Acting Director L. Patrick Gray III Friday overturned J. Edgar Hoover's long-standing refusal to hire women as special FBI agents.

Gray said women could apply immediately to become the bureau's first special agents in history.

Although he told a reporter he expected to be criticized for the decision, Gray said "I feel it is something we have to do." He said women would be required to undergo the same intensive 14-week training course as male agents if they were accepted for the job, which pays $12,151 a year to start.

Women also must meet the same requirements of U.S. citizenship, and be graduates of law schools, colleges where they have majored in accounting, or have three years law enforcement experience.

Applicants must be between 23 and 40, be at least 5-foot-7, have good vision and hearing and be able to handle firearms.

Mrs. Cynthia Edgar, 25, one of two women lawyers who sued Hoover last year when he rejected their applications as agents, told UPI she hoped to get an application in the mail shortly, but added: "It doesn't really matter to me whether I'm the first."

Hoover thought the job of special agent was too dangerous for women. When Mrs. Edgar applied last year, she was told that women "could not handle combat situations."

In a press release he helped draft himself, Gray said his action was actually required by an Aug. 9, 1969, Presidential order which Hoover apparently felt was not applicable to the FBI.

Gray said Nixon's nondiscrimination order — along with the recently enacted 1972 Equal Employment Opportunity Act — required the FBI to accept women. Gray opened FBI ranks to women agents after a meeting Thursday with the top 15 men in the FBI hierarchy who had worked for Hoover during his nearly 48 years in office.

"One of the very top senior aides said to me, 'You won't find any real opposition on this, Mr. Gray,'" Gray said.

When Gray was assistant attorney general in charge of the civil division, he had recommended that Hoover settle the suit by Mrs. Edgar and another woman, Sandra Rothenberg Nemser, 28, of Denver, but Hoover refused.

Mrs. Edgar 5-foot-7 and 120 pounds, was an assistant to Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., when she sued Aug. 4 in U.S. District Court

'Just HHH' battling Wallace

By United Press International
Hubert H. Humphrey, contending that he alone is really fighting George C. Wallace's bid for the presidential nomination, Friday urged voters in Maryland and Michigan to back him rather than George S. McGovern when the two states hold Democratic primaries Tuesday.

"The rest of my colleagues are running away from George Wallace," the Minnesota senator declared. "I am the only one who has challenged Wallace directly. The newspapers are calling for a candidate with courage and I have shown that courage."

Later, in another apparent reference to McGovern, Humphrey told a group of elderly citizens in the Washington suburb of Silver Spring, Md., that he was "wary of these sunshine liberals who get liberal all at once."

Humphrey then flew to Michigan to resume his quest for that state's 132 convention delegates, as Wallace continued his sweep through Maryland with rallies in Salisbury and Cambridge.

Wallace, a target of rocks and bottles thrown by black teenagers Thursday night during an appearance in Frederick, Md., faced more possible trouble at the evening rally in Cambridge. The Eastern Shore city had a major race riot in 1967 and blacks there began nearly a month ago to picket public buildings and some stores in protest against his visit.

The Alabama governor was favored to capture the majority of Maryland's 53-member convention delegation, but Humphrey appeared to hold a narrow lead over the field of 11 in a separate presidential preference contest.

McGovern, who planned to make his first visit to Maryland today, devoted all of his time Friday to New Jersey

Legislature gets impatient

Home Rule pressure rises

HARRISBURG (UPI)—Rep. Samuel Rappaport, D-Philadelphia, said Friday the legislature will not stand idly by and watch local governments ignore the new home rule law.

"We in the legislature are damned sick and tired of having to pass laws that apply to only one or two municipalities," Rappaport told a meeting of about 400 local government officials.

The meeting was sponsored by the Pennsylvania League of Cities, the Pennsylvania State Association of Boroughs, the Pennsylvania Township Supervisors Association and the Pennsylvania Township Commissioners Association.

It was designed to explain the complicated new law to the officials.

Under the law, local governments can, with the approval of the voters, establish home rule charters or one of the optional forms of government set forth in the law.

It would give local governments many of the powers, such as setting tax rates for example, which currently are reserved to the legislature.

"I don't care about setting the pensions for firemen in second class townships," Rappaport said. "And I don't care whether your auditors are paid $15 or $20 a day. That's your job and we're going to let you do it."

Rappaport, was was instrumental in engineering legislative approval of the bill, said it will mean a "revolution in taxes."

Under the current system, the legislature determines the kind rate and base of taxes. Under home rule, the legislature will set only who can be taxed and how.

"After that," Rappaport said, "the sky's the limit."

"You are going to set your own rates of taxation and you are going to have to answer for it. You will have to show the taxpayers what they are getting for their money."

John Seales, chairman of the state Democratic Committee and District Attorney of Westmoreland County, told the officials.

Cop cited in plot

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—A former Philadelphia police lieutenant Friday was among five men indicted by a federal grand jury in connection with an Africa-to-New York hashish smuggling plot.

The federal indictment charged former Lt. Joseph Marker, 37, and four others with conspiring to sell the $150,000 in illegal hash in May of last year after it had been smuggled into New York Harbor in a British Land Rover.

Retaliation for 'interference'

Chile to take ITT holdings

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—President Salvador Allende, with "profound satisfaction," asked congress Friday to expropriate the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation's 79 per cent interest in Chile's largest telephone company.

Allende said "the dignity and the independence of the nation demanded such action" as a reprisal for ITT's alleged efforts to prevent his inauguration as the hemisphere's first freely elected Marxist president in November 1970.

ITT's alleged contacts with American officials in Washington, inquiring about possible ways of blocking Allende's inauguration, first were revealed by columnist Jack Anderson last March 21.

"It is with profound satisfaction that I am signing these measures, which I am certain congress will speedily approve," Allende said.

One of the bills is a constitutional amendment to expropriate ITT's share in the Chilean Telephone Co. The other proposal cancels a 50-year concession granted in 1930 that gave ITT controlling interest in the company.

ITT's other Chilean holdings were unaffected. They include two Sheraton hotels in Santiago, the All America Cables and Radio Co.

The telephone company has been operated by the government since last September, when talks on nationalization collapsed in a dispute over book value. ITT said its interests were worth $120 million, while the government placed the figure at $20 million.

The Overseas Private Investment Corp., a U.S. government agency, has insured ITT's investment in the telephone company for $108.5 million.

Germanies sign pact

BOON (UPI)—Rival German states divided for a generation by Communist barbed wire and mine fields Friday initiated their first state treaty, a contract West German officials hoped would remove some of the barriers.

East Germany said the agreement could take effect as soon as the West German Parliament ratifies Chancellor Willy Brandt's nonaggression treaties with Russia and Poland.

Chances for approval of the pact by a large majority next Wednesday improved sharply when a leader of the opposition Christian Democratic rightwing announced his support and urged his colleagues to follow suit.

Legalizing pot won't spread use, unit says

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse said Friday a survey showed that about three-fourths of the young people who have never tried marijuana would not use it even if it were legalized.

In a newly published index to its full report, the commission said most of those who have not experimented with the drug said they shied away from it because they feared physical or mental damage.

The commission, in its full report to President Nixon and Congress in March, concluded there was little proven danger of physical or psychological harm from experimental or intermittent use of marijuana.

Blasts alert U.S. bases in Europe

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI)—U.S. authorities Friday tightened security at all military installations throughout Europe following the bombing of the Army's 5th Corps headquarters in downtown Frankfurt.

American army experts and West German police sought to determine whether the three bombs that blasted the headquarters here Thursday night were planted by anti-Vietnam war protesters.

Ironically, the only person killed in the blasts was a much-decorated helicopter pilot who survived two tours of duty in Vietnam. Thirteen other persons, including four women, were injured.

It estimated that 24 million Americans had tried marijuana at least once.

The new survey asked those ages 12 through 17 their reasons for abstaining from marijuana. It discovered: More than half expressed fear of damage to their body or mind or said they refrained because it was illegal. Slightly under half abstained because they felt marijuana use was morally wrong and slightly more than one-third said they were concerned about becoming addicted.

One-fifth of those interviewed said they feared arrest or jail and about the same percentage cited uncertainty about the drug's effects.

Many abstainers gave several reasons for not using it and 73 per cent said they would not use it under any circumstance.

"Thus it appears that even if the current policy were changed so that marijuana use was either de-criminalized or legalized, and even if the drug became more freely available than it is now, the majority of individuals who have not used marijuana do not believe they are likely to initiate use," the commission said.

Machines take over jobs; replace phone operators

By MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter
BANGOR — Most Commonwealth Telephone customers think those pleasant operators they talk to work off rows and rows of switch boards in the back room of the Bangor main office.

Actually, nothing could be farther from the truth. Complex, sophisticated call-placing machinery containing millions of wires and thousands of relays, have replaced these female forerunners.

Somewhat distorted by Laugh-In's classic operator Lilly Tomlin, the picture of the internal make-up of the telephone company usually includes an operator.

"She's there; I know she's there," said one Broadheadsville customer in disbelief. "I talk to her when I make a long-distance call." Actually, the long distance operator Commonwealth customers talk to is a Bell Telephone operator in Easton or Stroudsburg.

The majority of behind-the-scenes service is taken care of round the clock by seven engineers called switchmen.

The switchmen are responsible for cleaning and maintaining the relay equipment that accepts and sends calls all over the nation. It takes about five and a half years for a man just to learn the job.

In the back room of the telephone company, a giant gray metal "switch train" about 10-feet tall, weaves its way up and down in rows. The clicking sound of dialing customers is incessant; lights are flashing everywhere.

The train itself, never moves; the calls move up and down the rows, however, searching for the proper relay.

According to David Roosa, central office manager at Commonwealth, the most horrible sound in the world for a switchman is to hear the back room completely quiet.

According to the phone engineer, this means that no calls are going through the central office and that something major is wrong.

Roosa said at times a common control breaks down or there is a total loss of battery power that is responsible for the complete silence.

When asked what the average customer could do to hurt the switching equipment, Roosa said the biggest problem occurred when residents tried to force their dial when it moved too slowly.

"This breaks down the tolerance of the telephone," he said, "and eventually the customer will keep getting wrong numbers."

Roosa also said there was a difference in busy signals. A slow buzz means the line is actually busy. A fast busy indicates that there isn't a vacant terminal to relay a number in the chain.

For example, when a resident dials 588-1234, this represents six steps in the chain. When part five (the number 2) goes through the chain, it has 40 chances to find a vacant terminal. If all of the 2 terminals are being used, the result is a fast busy signal.

When asked about especially busy calling periods like Mother's Day, Roosa said additional circuits are installed by phone companies to handle the overload.

When asked how he likes the new equipment, Earl Raesley, a switchman with Commonwealth for 28 years recalled the old days when operators really used to place calls in the back room of the Bangor office.

"The only thing I can say," he commented, "is that you can't hold hands with the operators anymore."

Paintings based on children displayed

CRESCO — A series of recent paintings by Peter Salmon, based on four years as an unofficial "artist in residence" at the Barrett Elementary Center, Cresco, are now on display in the school library.

Salmon, whose wife taught first grade at the school, has visited the classroom each of the last four years to record his impressions of children in school.

The present exhibition includes many of these drawings which were made right on the spot, as well as the paintings based on the drawings.

Parents interested in viewing the works are invited to do so.

Up Milford way

Local scene

By NORMAN LEHDE

In addition to President Nixon's latest plan to get us out of Vietnam, the early week provided some interesting things on the local scene.

On Monday evening, the members of the Milford Water Authority discussed some of their problems and future plans with visitors including officers of the Milford Taxpayers' League.

During the evening the Authority may have discovered that answering questions and providing progress reports might be just the correct response to visitors. There were no angry outbursts, there was no "harassment", and certainly the session was highly informative.

On Tuesday evening, the Pike County Democratic Party had its reorganization meeting. The chairmanship changed hands, passing from Robert Dean, highway superintendent, to Ernest Gastmeyer, a former chairman and a former highway superintendent. The lines were drawn rather sharply between the two men. So sharply that one wondered if the hoped for party unity would prove to be as elusive as Mr. Nixon's search for withdrawal with honor (or is it honor with withdrawal?)

As if the Dean-Gastmeyer contest wasn't enough for one evening, the subject of the Tocks Island project was tossed onto the floor at the Democratic meeting. A resolution was proposed that the committee go on record as opposing the project, or at least the dam part of the project, if it appeared there were some present who would not damn the recreation area as they considered it a source of salvation for Pike County greenland against developer interests who prefer their green on dollar bills.

In the end, the committee voted not to take a stand against the project and not to take a vote on a motion in favor of the project so the motion was withdrawn. All of which may point to the need for further authoritative guidelines on the environmental aspects, the true "costs" of the project.

None asked for a vote on Russell Baker's recent proposal that, instead of dropping bombs on Vietnam, we drop our garbage instead.

Concert scheduled in Milford

MILFORD — "The Amplified Version", a young people's singing group from southern New Jersey, will present a concert of gospel music at 7 p.m. today at the Milford Bible Protestant Church, 303 West Ann St., Milford.

The group, under the direction of William Dougherty, has been organized for two years and is composed primarily of teenagers from various Bible Protestant Churches throughout the Garden State.

The program will consist of vocal and instrumental numbers.

DelVal school directors adopt $2,135,977 budget

MATAMORAS — The Delaware Valley School Board, in a three-hour meeting at the high school Thursday evening, covered a wide range of subject matter.

The 1972-73 school budget calling for expenditures of $2,135,977 was adopted. The tax millage in the district will remain at $84 per $1,000 of assessment.

The board voted to ask their solicitor, Sidney L. Krawitz, to contact the Pike County Court relative to the progress being made by the county commissioners regarding reassessment.

Two years ago, the board brought legal action against the county charging that the county's policy and assessment procedure were in violation of state law.

The board passed a resolution protesting a proposed rate increase by the Pike County Light and Power Company. President Hazel Irvine who conducted the meeting said the board would be represented when a hearing is held on the requested increase before the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission. Director Thomas Hogan was elected treasurer, effective July 1, at an annual salary of $300.

A policy change was improved to enable students to ride motorcycles subject to rules and regulations as determined by a committee composed of students and members of the administration.

A contract was approved with Buchart Associates, a York architectural firm, for advice and assistance relative to future building needs.

The board was given a detailed report on the work of the physical education department including a summary of the curriculum for health classes for both boys and girls.

Other reports included a summary of the Pennsylvania Tour planned for the eighth grade students and highlights of conventions and conferences attended by board members and administrators.

The board hired six new teachers and one teacher aide for the 1972-73 term and accepted two resignations.

Beegle named fire chief

BANGOR — Kenneth Beegle of 328 South Main St. was named fire chief of Bangor's three-unit fire department at a recent council meeting.

The 47-year-old self-employed carpenter was appointed by the borough council 8-3, as recommended by Second Ward and Liberty Companies.

Rescue Fire Co. had recommended that Benjamin Albert, fire chief for the past 29 years, be reappointed. Robert Owens, a foreman in the Liberty unit was named assistant fire chief.

Beegle served as assistant fire chief under Albert for the past four years and has been a volunteer for 20 years.

The council was forced to choose between the two nominations when the individual companies were unable to give either candidate a majority vote.

In other action, the council received the resignation of Edward Fishler as Fourth Ward councilman effective July 1 but they will not take action until the regular meeting on June 5.

Fishler has been assistant principal of Bangor Area Junior High School since 1970.

Society plans benefit dinners

MOUNT POCONO — At a recent meeting of the Dorcas Society of the Lutheran Church of Our Saviour, Mount Pocono, plans were completed for two spaghetti dinners to be held Saturday, July 1st and Saturday, August 5th.

Proceeds from these dinners will go to the proposed "Meals on Wheels" program.

Politics attacks Tocks project

As opposition to the Tocks Island Dam continues to grow, it seems also to be moving in an unfortunate direction, a political direction.

Since funds first were made available for the project, preliminary work went apace. There was nothing political about it; a job to be done, and the groundwork was being prepared.

However, once opposition begins to make itself felt, no matter how much the view is in the minority, the issue at stake becomes invested with political overtones. Politicians who were solidly in favor of Tocks just a short while ago are now voicing doubts, if not disapproval.

It seems strange, because these men — New Jersey Gov. William Cahill and New York Sen. James L. Buckley, for example — are viewing the Tocks project askance from the vantage point of the same information, reports, studies, et al, from which they approved the project before.

What happened?

Why the sudden turnabout? Why does Gov. Cahill now feel certain there are alternate water resource plans for near-dry Newark and Trenton, when in the past he felt equally certain the Tocks Dam and Reservoir was all that could save those areas from dying of thirst? Why now does Buckley express the same opinion about New York's water needs when he, too, gave tacit support to the need for Tocks in the past?

The answer? Politics. The Tocks project no longer is just a provincial project hidden off in a secluded corner of the Pocono Mountains. It has drawn regional attention in a very forceful way, primarily because the Delaware River Basin Commission has pointed out what always had been known and accepted — that the reservoir must be protected by a sewage treatment system, or its value as a reservoir and recreational facility would have but a brief life.

What is new is the cost factor. Admittedly, the cost of the necessary sewerage system is high; but if the area around the Delaware River is to remain in an environmentally sound condition, such a system is going to be needed anyway, dam or no dam.

Planned for ages

But it is not good politics to endorse high-cost projects. Taken together, the dam and sewerage system may end up costing the federal, state and local governments close to a billion dollars.

That's a lot of money. But the project is planned for the ages, not for the next 10 years. The pro-rated value of the project over the next 50 years brings the cost well within reason.

Unless, of course, our population stops increasing, or decreases — both unlikely happenstances. The mark of a statesman is the ability to rise above politics. Considering the needs of this area within the next 20 to 50 years, the time has come for statesmanship, not politics that are cheap now, but will be intolerably costly to our children and grandchildren.

Coin corner

$100,000 coin

By ROBERT SVENSSON

With oil paintings going for millions, old automobiles fetching up to $50,000, why not a coin worth $100,000.

This almost unbelievable happening is closer than you think. Not one, but two, United States coins are within striking distance of bringing that fantastic price.

Strangely, neither of them is a legitimate coin. But that seems to make them worth more, not less.

The 1913 nickel is a coin that was never supposed to be. But it is. Just in case that sounds quixotic, here are the facts:

In 1912 the powers at the U.S. Treasury decided to phase out the Liberty Head Nickel which had been around since 1883 (see reverse on illustration). Its successor was to be the Buffalo Nickel.

The Mint was a bit slow in turning out the new coin, the 1913 Buffalo. This set the stage for a bit of skulduggery at the Mint. Someone decided that there should be a 1913 Liberty Head Nickel, and this enterprising gentleman (no one ever found out who he was) took the Liberty Head dies, added a 1913 date, and turned out five of them all on his own.

They are the only Liberty Head Nickels bearing the 1913 date. The coin was entirely illegal, completely unofficial.

Will Kennedy back McGovern?

PRECONVENTION DEMOCRATIC MANEUVERING. The contest has now narrowed to two ascendant candidates — Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern. The prospect is that neither can get the nomination through the remaining primaries.

This means that new political coalitions will be sought.

Leaders of the Democratic left are already talking to Sen. Edward Kennedy privately to persuade him to give his open support to Sen. McGovern. They believe it could be decisive.

The party centrists are aiming to shape a coalition of the supporters of Muskie, Jackson and other Democratic middle-roads behind Sen. Humphrey. They believe it could be decisive.

WHAT MCGOVERN MEN SAY TO TEDDY. They are saying these things:

That Kennedy's support could ensure the nomination of the man nearest to his views (McGovern) and defeat the man furthest from his views (Humphrey).

That by declaring his position now, Kennedy could almost certainly avert a divisive, weakening convention deadlock.

That since Kennedy says he does not wish or intend to run for office this year, this is the best way to make sure he does not have to.

HUMPHREY ON THE RISE. He has wide support within both the leadership and rank-and-file of the Democratic Party. It would not be surprising to see both Muskie and Jackson withdraw and support Humphrey.

WILL MOSCOW CALL OFF THE NIXON TRIP? It's surprising the Soviets haven't done so already. The provocation is greater than when Khrushchev canceled the invitation to Eisenhower in 1960 after the U-2 spy plane was shot down.

Jeffrey Hart

Wallace enigma

One of the peculiar things about the current Presidential primary campaign remains the universal and indeed unquestioned agreement that Gov. George Wallace is not a "serious" or "credible" or "viable" candidate for the Democratic nomination.

I am not advocating a Wallace nomination, let alone a Wallace Presidency, and yet, simply on the face of it, the current agreement that he could not possibly be the Democratic nominee is an odd one, even if true. For it is also true that his performance in the primaries so far has been virtually as impressive as that of the accepted or "legitimate" candidates.

Wallace won as convincingly in Florida as McGovern did in Massachusetts, and as convincingly in Tennessee as McGovern did in Wisconsin. Wallace was impressive in Pennsylvania, where Humphrey won, and he also did well in Ohio and Michigan. He ran very well in Indiana. In Wisconsin, Wallace spent $366 and still came in ahead of the "real" candidate, Muskie, who spent $473,000.

Not tested in polls And yet, despite all this, not one of the national polls, so far as I know, has tested Wallace in a race against Nixon as the regular Democratic nominee. Gallup, Harris and the others have tested Muskie, McGovern, Humphrey and Kennedy — who denies that he is even a candidate — and they have even tested Lindsay, but not Wallace.

Perhaps the managers of the national polls, either consciously or merely instinctively, do not desire to confer upon George Wallace the sort of legitimacy that inclusion in a national poll would suggest. In effect, such inclusion would be thinking the unthinkable. Perhaps the national polls fear that Wallace might even do rather well if the voters were Today U.S. satellites photograph far more information than the U-2s ever did. Russian ships have been hit in Haiphong Harbor and Nixon has sharply criticized the Soviets for supplying offensive arms to Hanoi.

But the plans for the summit go forward. There is no sign that Nixon will not be going to Moscow on May 22. This means that the President and the Soviets alike see their evolving long-term goals — European detente, nuclear arms control and expanding trade — as more important than short-term irritations.

The Russians don't want Nixon dealing with the Chinese without simultaneously dealing with them.

LABOR'S BIG CLOUD AT THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION. If the present pattern of delegate choice keeps up, the AFL-CIO will likely have merely one-third of the 1,609 votes needed to decide the Democratic nomination.

Union officials are shifting tactics to augment their convention power. They were trying to elect uncommitted delegates. Now they are doing better by getting union members to run pledged to any one of the leading candidates. Assuming no first-ballot nomination, the labor delegates can then pool their numbers and build a strong bargaining position.

WOMEN'S LIB AND THE ELECTIONS. No big breakthrough for women in national elections is in sight. The goal of Women's Lib advocates is to triple the number of women in Congress. They will do well to hold their own — one senator and 11 House members.

Women candidates will do better in state and local contests. There are now 24 women mayors and more will be elected. Only one woman is a serious candidate for governor, State Democratic Rep. Frances T. Farenthold in Texas.

allowed to perceive him, even speculatively, as the regular Democratic nominee.

Now it is usually said that no candidate with Wallace's racist background could do well in a Presidential election, and it is true that Wallace at one point vowed to maintain "segregation forever."

On the other hand, men do change, and everyone agrees that Wallace has now greatly broadened his appeal. His stress on things like taxation, busing, and remote bureaucracy has had a powerful effect on the campaigns of his Democratic rivals. Who can be so sure that Wallace, a born politician, if there ever was one, has not outgrown his provincialism and racism?

McGovern steadfast

But if some evidence exists that George Wallace has changed, George McGovern seems to be much the same man who campaigned for Henry Wallace's Progressive Party in 1948 — and that particular phase of McGovern's career would, one might think, be just as unacceptable as George Wallace's racist past. And far from disavowing his support of the Progressive Party, McGovern today says that Henry Wallace was "essentially right" in 1948 despite the fact that a) in 1948 Henry Wallace condoned the Soviet takeover in Czechoslovakia, b) that his Presidential campaign was stage-managed by the American Communist Party, and c) Henry Wallace himself, returning to sobriety, repudiated his 1948 positions.

George Wallace may have grown; George McGovern apparently has not.

As I say, I am not an advocate of the Alabamian's nomination. But it does seem odd that no one — at least publicly — considers him a "real" candidate when he obviously is a very strong one.

Letters to the Editor

Peace plan has failed

Editor, The Record:

After three and a half years in office, President Nixon admitted on Monday night that his peace plan has failed.

Under the corrupt leadership of Saigon, the Southern army cannot stand against the highly motivated communist forces — even with American training, arms and the greatest air support the world has ever seen.

Sixty thousand American servicemen and hundreds of POWs still remain in Vietnam. Rather than negotiating now for their safe withdrawal, President Nixon has told us that the honor of America is tied to the survival of South Vietnam.

But is it a nation? In 1946 France recognized the Republic of Vietnam under the leadership of Ho Chi Minh. When fighting erupted they tried for eight years to reconquer their former colony — and failed. When the Geneva Accords established two "regrouping zones" it was understood that "the military demarcation line is provisional and should not in any way be interpreted as constituting a political or territorial boundary."

Thus, history shows that the whole concept of South Vietnam as a nation is an American creation. Our intervention is as much desired by most of the Vietnamese people as Vietnamese intervention — on either side — would have been appreciated in our own Civil War. Yet President Nixon has said that American honor rests upon the survival of the Thieu dictatorship.

We have spent more than 50,000 American lives and $130 billion trying to develop a viable government in South Vietnam. The war has twisted the economy and weakened the dollar at home and abroad. It has caused the most urgent domestic problems to be neglected. It has spread disillusion and drugs among our young both in and out of service. And it has not brought us honor, but fear and dislike among the small nations of the world who want to choose their own directions.

Yet President Nixon tells us that we should support him, that more violence will save lives, that escalating the war will bring peace, that bombing and mining this distant land will bring honor.

There is still time to negotiate the complete withdrawal of U.S. forces and POWs. Soon the South Vietnamese will collapse and our bases will be surrounded. What fearful escalation will the President decide upon then? I urge every reader who cares about this nation and its servicemen to write to the President now — while there is still time.

Nixon commended for courage

Editor, The Record:

In "Hanoi blockade critical gamble" you write-off the lives of 60,000 American Servicemen and American Prisoners of War and say we can't ask Russia to abandon its ally, Hanoi, because we won't abandon our ally, Saigon. "Is it better to be carrying the world to World War III," you ask, "or to be known as a paper tiger?"

Bringing the world to the brink of World War III was done by Russia when, through Hanoi, it sent tanks into South Vietnam. President Nixon only countered with the blockade of Hanoi's ports. He invaded nothing.

Our bete noire, Russia with its atomic power, is no paper tiger the winds of liberalism will blow away, nor a pussycat to play with. Closing our eyes won't make this dangerous world go away. We have to stay awake and, if threatened, fight.

Since World War II America, to keep the Russians and Chinese from taking the world nation by nation, gave its word to smaller nations to help them if they were attacked. Protecting them was and is our way of curtailing totalitarian power.

So, when Russia, through Hanoi, sent tanks southward through South Vietnam, we were threatened. We cannot abandon our servicemen or our ally to save our necks. Everyone would know we were hypnotized by fear of atomic power and a country that will fight, Russia. We would have become less than men, who fight to protect themselves. For the rest of our lives we would walk around on our knees instead of on our own two feet, and be the slaves of our Russian masters.

Thus we are neither initiators of wars nor paper tigers, but Americans who bow their necks to no man.

Nixon should be commended for his courage.

WASHINGTON — When the FBI's relentless sleuths fix their attention on a culprit, real or imagined, few sources of information are considered too personal or sacred for exploitation.

Neighbors, friends, ex-spouses, building superintendents, college officials, even newspaper reporters are plumbed for tidbits of gossip. Surprisingly, most of them become positively garrulous in the presence of a G-Man.

Airline sources freely provide flight details about their passengers. Bank executives turn over their depositors' most sensitive financial records, calculated to the very penny.

The federal government itself is a smorgasbord of information. Data is compiled on the average American citizen from the time of his birth, and the FBI feasts on it.

Military records, Selective Service records, Passport, Customs, Social Security, and even Internal Revenue files, which the hapless citizen thinks are confidential, are actually wide open to the federal cops.

The FBI has used these sources to dig out strictly personal information about a variety of public figures who have not committed crimes and aren't ever likely to do so.

For example, the FBI wangled information about black leader Ralph David Abernathy from an intriguing cross section of sources. Abernathy succeeded the martyred Martin Luther King, Jr., as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

The most frequent references in Abernathy's file are ubiquitous "confidential" sources who have furnished reliable information in the past.

This can be anything from wiretaps, to disgruntled ex-employees, to accommodating newsmen.

Some of the most outrageous charges are based on the most dubious evidence. One entry in Abernathy's file, for example, cites an anonymous "Communist Party functionary" who "described Martin Luther King, Jr., as a confirmed Marxist in February, 1962."

Also consulted was "Mr. John A. Ritter, Credit Bureau of Greater Atlanta, Inc.," who solemnly informed the FBI that Abernathy "was employed from 1951 to 1961 as pastor of the First Baptist Church . . . Montgomery, Alabama."

For information on former world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali, nee Cassius Clay, the FBI turned to his former wife:

"On June 7, 1966, Sonji Clay was interviewed at her residence . . . She advised that from her personal association with Clay, she knows that the NOI (Nation of Islam, the Black Muslims) controls his boxing career and through Main Bout, Inc., of New York City, which is owned and operated by the NOI, limits Clay's income to 20 per cent of his earnings and the remaining 80 per cent is for the NOI."

"She advised that Clay would comply with any directive of the NOI in that he is an absolute blind follower of Elijah Muhammad (national leader of the Black Muslims)."

In this case, the FBI was investigating Ali's claim that he is a conscientious objector. This, however, is hardly sufficient justification for prying from his wife confidential information

When baby doctor Benjamin Spock was speaking out against nuclear warfare in the mid-1960s, the FBI visited Case Western University in Cleveland, where he was teaching. There they obtained "the personnel file pertaining to Dr. Spock," which was "reviewed on December 23, 1964."

Such inquiries, of course, serve not only to add bulk to the FBI's files, but also to prejudice a person's employer against him.

For information on black author James Baldwin, the sleuths called on "Joseph Brusco, (apartment) Superintendent, 137 West 71st Street, New York City" to learn that "Baldwin had returned from his trip to Turkey." This hot little item was stamped "Secret — No Foreign Dissemination."

Telephone companies lean over backwards to help the top cops. For information on entertainer Harry Belafonte's associates, for example, the FBI consulted "the records of the New York Telephone Company," which were "furnished to Special Agent James M. Anderson by Edward L. Braune."

The telephone customer of course, rarely suspects that the phone company is tattling on him to the FBI at the same time it is collecting his money.

Bank accounts also pose no problems for the federal investigators. The file on movie actress Jane Fonda, for example, is full of details about her checking accounts.

"On January 4, 1971," says a typical excerpt, "a confidential source who has furnished reliable information in the past furnished the following information concerning the checking accounts of Jane Fonda at the Morgan Guaranty Trust Company, 15 Broad Street, New York, New York." The "confidential source," apparently, was the bank itself.

Footnote: The most common "sources" in an FBI dossier are ordinary newspapers. The agency's files bulge with clippings, many of them unaccountably classified.

Concert scores Pennsylvania music

STROUDSBURG — Climax of National Music Week, sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs, in the local celebration was the concert presented at Pinebrook Junior College featuring the work of Pennsylvania composers.

Mrs. E. Wendel Holden was chairman of the program which opened with greetings by the president of the Music Study Club of the Stroudsburgs, Mrs. Jack Manchester. Stroudsburg Mayor Warren F. Loney brought community greetings.

The program opened with a group of songs by The Shawnee Choir, with piano and celeste accompaniment by Robert Currier and Richard Lindroth.

Norman Fox led the group in the national anthem with Pauline Fox, organ; Lucy Quig, piano; Rev. David Watkins, trumpet. Rev. Carl Cassel, baritone, sang the Pledge of Allegiance by Malotte.

Mrs. Robert M. Hartman, president of the Monroe County Garden Club, spoke on the symbolism of Pennsylvania, the hemlock, quail and laurel, which also decorated the program cover, designed by Lorane Poner.

Judge James R. Marsh explained the symbols of the state flag of Pennsylvania.

Also featured on the program was music by Pauline Fox, with Mrs. Fox at the piano, Eleanor Holden, organ; and Norman Fox, tenor.

A youth folk group from Pinebrook college played Steven Foster melodies and the Music Study Club Chorus, directed by Eleanor Holden sang Pennsylvania numbers including George Groff's "When Irish Eyes are Smiling."

The program included the state song, "Pennsylvania" and greetings from Mrs. H. Berton George, Stroudsburg, now president of the State Federation of Music Clubs.

It closed with the hymn of the month, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again"

Faithful Workers have nature program

STROUDSBURG — The Faithful Workers Class of Zion United Church of Christ devoted much of its meeting to nature.

Mrs. Lucy Quig read the scripture followed by "April Prayer" by Emma Cook. Verna Ace gave a reading "Jesus — A Man of Nature," Mrs. Quig a series of readings and the history of two hymns.

Each member was presented with a hand-crocheted cross bookmark by Verna Ace. Class projects are selling all kinds of greeting cards and hand-knitted booties in two styles.

Present were: Clara Leckebusch, Florence Gregory, Mary Vough, Margaret Lee, Mabel Setzer, Clementine Crossdale, Helen Shick, Elizabeth Smith, Lucy Quig, Verna Ace and Emma Cook. Mrs. Setzer was hostess.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Time goes by so fast is a common complaint for a lot of people particularly when everything seems to be going down hill. But I face an extra hazard in writing about things that are going to happen two days in advance as if they were today.

The tulips are dropping their petals. Leaves are getting big enough to cast shadows in the street lights and I haven't begun to enjoy it all.

What I'd like most for Mother's Day would be a whole day just to savor the minutes as they pass.

Presbyterian women set county meet

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE — The Presbyterian Women of Monroe County will have their annual meeting on Tuesday, May 16, at 7:30 at the Shawnee Presbyterian Church.

Members of the Women's Assn. of the five Presbyterian churches in the county will unite for the meeting with each church group providing some part of the program.

Shawnee Women's Assn., Mrs. Ronald Clapper, president, will be hosts for the meeting and the social hour which will follow. The women of the Middle Smithfield, Mrs. Leo Pipher, president, will be in charge of devotions.

The Delaware Water Gap Ass. of which Mrs. Clifford Hauser is president has arranged for special music featuring vocal selections by Miss Caroline Zellers and Miss Mary Vanderslice.

The East Stroudsburg group, Mrs. Edward Flory, president, will provide the speaker, Rev. Elizabeth Beck of Southside Presbyterian Church, Easton, who will speak on "Where Women Are in the Church."

The Stroudsburg Women's Assn. of which Mrs. James Detrick is president, will prepare the program folders. All women of the county, and especially all Presbyterian women are invited to attend the annual event.

Employees at the new W.T. Grant store in East Stroudsburg Pocono plaza will be working feverishly today to prepare the new facility for its grand opening Monday morning. The opening will be preceded by a ribbon cutting ceremony attended by several area officials.

Grants gears for opening

EAST STROUDSBURG — When the spanking new W. T. Grant store opens Monday morning at 10 a.m. at the Pocono Plaza, what was for over the past year an arduous and lengthy construction melee will become an orderly and multi-faceted reality.

Originally scheduled to open around this time last year, the store faced a six-month delay due to a construction workers strike.

But Grant's doors will now officially open on Monday 15 minutes after a ribbon cutting ceremony which is expected to be attended by some 20 Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg Borough officials.

The first store to be completed within the new center, it will offer shoppers a diverse range of merchandise that runs the gamut from furniture, fashions, appliances and automobile materials to domestic goods, televisions and stereo units.

The store will also host a restaurant; camera, wig and pet shops; a home improvement center; garden shop and beauty salon.

W. T. Grant has brought in the new store's managerial staff from locations as far as New York with many commuting from Allentown and nearby communities.

This weekend, the store's 200 employees will take the last inventories, arrange the last displays, and "hopefully" complete the last of the preliminary office work.

Will the frantic pace of the past few pre-opening weeks end on Monday?

"I hope so," answered one harried bookkeeper. "But it will probably take a few more days to settle down."

With the nearest W. T. Grant located in Bangor, the new store will become part of a nationwide organization which boasts over 1,100 stores throughout the country that reap over $1 billion annually in sales.

As far as the local store's anticipated revenue during its first fledgling year, "That's confidential," exclaimed store operations manager Paul Kershner, who with other key personnel, expects to be working round-the-clock until Monday morning's ribbon is finally cut.

TIRAC head is speechless after two years' testimony

STROUDSBURG — After testifying for the past two years at Senate hearings in Washington in favor of continued appropriations for the Tocks Island Dam project, Thomas Klock, director-secretary of the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council (TIRAC), attended the fiscal 1973 appropriations hearing this week purely as a bystander.

And Klock, himself, is not sure why.

In March, Klock had notified the council's seven member counties that the agenda of the April 22 executive board meeting at Port Jervis would include action on whether or not TIRAC would testify this year.

"At that meeting, it was decided that the executive committee was not in a position to give direction at that time, and that I should request each county to consider its position and to furnish me with instructions on what position TIRAC should take in testifying," Klock said upon his return from Washington.

He noted, two days later, letters requesting these positions were mailed to the chairmen of each county.

Klock subsequently received several replies which he said amounted to the following stands on the Tocks issue:

- Monroe - No reply furnished; position opposed.
- Pike - Do not testify; no position taken.
- Northampton - Do not testify; no position taken.
- Warren - No instructions; position opposed.
- Sussex - Do not testify; no position.
- Orange - No reply furnished; no position taken.
- Sullivan - Instructions not specific; would support the project on the condition the county would receive 80 per cent funding to solve its water quality control problems.

In a letter to the appropriations committee chairman, the Monroe County Commissioners forwarded for the hearing's record the results of the primary referendum on the Tocks question.

It noted 3,154 county residents were opposed to construction of the dam with only 1,633 voters supporting it and that 2,544 residents favored use of the land acquired for the dam for recreation and the national park with 1,866 voters opposing this possibility.

The letter further stressed that those costs of the Delaware River Basin Commission's (DRBC) regional sewerage system connected with preventing the proposed dam from becoming polluted should not be imposed on local residents.

A letter received by Klock from the Pike County Commissioners stated, "It was our understanding that when TIRAC was formed it was to be an advisory board to the counties involved and that TIRAC itself was not to become an advocate of any plans or programs."

"It is the desire of this county that we have an opportunity to make our own position known to all federal and state agencies."

Pike County's position, incorporated into the hearing's record this week, is essentially opposition to further appropriations until the county is guaranteed it will receive 100 per cent funding to cope with the police and fire protection, sewerage, educational and medical costs associated with problems that have arisen from the presence of the project locally.

The Warren County Freeholders also opposed construction of the dam, citing among their reasons, a belief that alternate flood control measures could be provided, the impact on local residents would outweigh the project's benefits, and that it has the potential to "destroy an already fragile ecological balance in the Delaware River Valley."

Warren officials endorsed the concept of a national park, stressing the river should be preserved in its "free-flowing natural state."

The lack of a consensus among TIRAC's member counties is being viewed on many levels as symptomatic of the growing controversy surrounding the project and the increasing attacks being leveled against it from high echelon governmental officials.

While Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania continues to endorse the project, new reservations were expressed at the DRBC's annual governors' meeting, held in Washington this week on the same day as the appropriations hearing.

Governors William Cahill of New Jersey and Russell Peterson of Delaware indicated they are reevaluating the project and New York's top environmental official, Henry L. Diamond, disclosed, on behalf of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, that the state would consider reassessing its support for the project should other DRBC member states raise questions.

Youth drowns at resort

MOUNT POCONO — An 18-year-old Carlstadt, N.J., youth drowned Friday at Mount Airy Lodge, Mount Pocono while on a high school outing.

Pennsylvania State Police from the Fern Ridge barracks said Robert L. Smith, a senior at Beckton Regional High School in New Jersey, was pulled from the bottom of the resort's indoor swimming pool by a lifeguard at approximately 3:30 p.m. Friday.

Trooper James Harris reported the youth's lifeless body was spotted in the water by another guest at the resort and she alerted the lifeguard who tried to resuscitate the youth for more than an hour after he was pulled from the pool.

Smith was taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County where he was pronounced dead on arrival. The cause of death has been tentatively set as accidental drowning but an official ruling will be made later today by Monroe County Coroner Daniel G. Warner after a complete autopsy is conducted.

Smith's death marks the second drowning in Monroe County in 1972. The first occurred at Strickland's Mountain Inn, less than a mile from Mount Airy, when a 21-year-old bride from New York was found dead in the indoor pool there early this year.

Her death was ruled as a suicide and the pool complex was closed and unattended when she was found.

Nuclear plants to face study

WASHINGTON — At the annual governors' meeting of the Delaware River Basin Commission (DRBC) held in Washington, D.C. this week, the inter-state agency adopted three resolutions.

The major basin power companies' proposed 15-year expansion program will be reviewed with the agency's staff and the utilities will be asked to present the DRBC with their recommendations for priorities and limitations of water-use generating projects by Jan. 1.

Also, a planning task force to develop a comprehensive pollution abatement program for the entire basin and to proceed with a liquid waste treatment management program will be named by the DRBC.

Points of interest in area roll out carpet for mothers

MOUNT POCONO — Mother's Day is a special day all over the United States. This year the owners of many of the special points of interest in the Pocono Mountains area wish to make this Mother's Day an especially memorable one for area mothers.

Spokesman for the group, Art Ogden, owner of Dingman's Falls and Silver Thread Falls in Dingman's Ferry, says that area attraction owners and operators are rolling out the red carpet for mothers on Sunday by making their facilities free to all mothers accompanied by children.

Dingman's Falls and Silver Thread Falls will admit all mothers free, if they are accompanied by at least one of their children.

Other area waterfalls, always popular at this time of the year, will also be extending free admission to mothers, including Winona Five Falls and Bushkill Falls, both located in Bushkill.

Also participating in this tribute to mothers will be Memorytown U.S.A. The facility will drop the admission charge for mothers to visit its popular Centennial Print Shop as well as the Circus and Wax Museum.

Next door to Memorytown, the Pennsylvania Dutch Farm will also participate by offering free tours to mothers. The farm has just announced the opening of a new area called the Calico Doll House, where an exclusive new line of dolls will be on display.

The Pocono Wild Animal Farm will also be opening its doors to mothers and the small fry, as will the Pocono Ice-A-Rama in Ansonia.

At nearby Ghost-town in the Glen, Avoca, this special Mother's Day policy will admit mothers free to the park, permitting them to attend all the shows and ride whatever rides they wish throughout the day.

Oppenheim's Magic Puppet World, six miles from Stroudsburg between Snyder'sville and Sciota on Business Rte. 209, and the Pocono Mineral and Gem Co., Canadensis, will also be cooperating in this local salute to mothers.

When mothers accompanied by a child or children arrive at either of these attractions, they will be presented with a complimentary gift and warm welcome, all for mother on her special day.

Miss Christine Jorgensen to give lecture at ESSC

EAST STROUDSBURG — Christine Jorgensen, who 20 years ago was surgically transformed from a man into a woman, will speak at 8 p.m. Monday in the East Stroudsburg State College auditorium.

The program, open to the public, is being sponsored by the social affairs board of the Student Activities Assn.

Born a male, she traveled to Denmark for the operation after having lived for 24 years as a shy, effeminate young man.

Following the operation, she became America's number one topic of discussion, and she has been credited with receiving more newspaper space than any other individual in the history of journalism ("Editor and Publisher," 1959).

Reacting to the curiosity which her story provoked, she commented, "It seems to me now a shocking commentary on the press of our time that I pushed the hydrogen-bomb tests on Eniwetok right off the front pages. A tragic war was still raging in Korea, George VI died, and Britain had a new queen. Jonas Salk was working on a vaccine for infantile paralysis."

She continued, "At one time or another, I was called a male homosexual, a female homosexual, a transvestite, a hermaphrodite, a true male masquerading as a female, a woman since birth who had devised a sensational method of notoriety for financial gain, or a totally sexless creature — this final category placing me in the same neutral corner as a table or chair."

Miss Christine Jorgensen

Leads quiet life

Leading a quiet life centered around a few close friends, she has spent several years working on her autobiography. Published in 1967, "Christine Jorgensen: A Personal Autobiography," was made into a film.

She said, "A clear and honest delineation of my life may help lead to a greater understanding of boys and girls who grow up knowing they will not fit into the pattern of life that is expected of them; of the men and women who struggle to adjust to sex roles unsuited to them; and of the intrepid ones who, like myself, must take drastic steps to remedy what they find intolerable."

One of the prime concerns of her lectures is to educate parents and children on the medical history — and the prognosis — of gender identity problems; what symptoms to look for, what steps to take to correct the problem, what treatment is available and how to deal with society's pressures.

Bicycle inspection today

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Borough Police Department will hold its annual bicycle inspection and registration today at police headquarters in the Borough Municipal Building on Sarah Street.

Chief John Baujan noted, "May is American Bike Month and it's a good time to remind motorists that bikes have equal rights on the road."

He also pointed out that bike riders share the same responsibility of safely operating their vehicles and making sure they are properly inspected and registered in the borough.

Borough Ordinance number 449 requires all bicycles operated "upon any of the public streets, alleys or highways within the Borough of Stroudsburg" be duly registered and licensed each year.

Baujan added that a registered bicycle is much easier to identify and return to its owner if it becomes lost or stolen.

Two fires destroy 10 acres

STROUDSBURG — Two fires in Monroe County Friday, one of which required the services of the Department of Environmental Resources helicopter to combat, destroyed almost 10 acres of brush and woodland in the Poconos.

The first fire broke out in a remote area of Pocono Township near Brookdale-on-the-Lake resort. Fire Chief William Raish described the blaze as "stubborn" and its inaccessible location held firefighters to the use of portable Indian tanks.

The DER helicopter assisted by dropping chemical extinguishing materials on the fire from the air. The blaze, which consumed five acres of woodland, took the helicopter, three trucks and 10 men from the Pocono Township Volunteer Fire Department about three hours to put out.

The fire was believed to have started from a campers' cook fire.

The second reported fire was at Buck Hill Falls, where four acres of brush burned on the resort property.

Two trucks and 28 men from the Barrett Township Fire Department fought the fire for one hour and returned to the station house by 7 p.m. The cause of that blaze was undetermined.

Housing problem dropped back into authorities' laps

EAST STROUDSBURG — The problem of moving seven Beers Street families from their condemned homes fell back on housing code authorities Friday when the landlord said she would not evict five of her six tenants.

Mrs. Gladys Kipp, of East Stroudsburg, said she would not move her tenants out on a May 14 eviction date unless they had a place to live.

Mrs. Kipp's houses and trailers on Beers Street, Stroudsburg, were declared unfit for human habitation March 10 and she was given 30 days to move the people out.

Although the deadline has passed and Mrs. Kipp told her tenants to leave by Monday, she said the eviction will not be carried out.

Mrs. Kipp said she would ask one of the families to leave. She said the family has been behind in their rent, damaged her house and moved more people into the house.

She began proceedings against the family Friday.

Mrs. Kipp said the other tenants have always paid their rent regularly and one tenant even pays ahead of time.

"I have no intention of evicting them," Mrs. Kipp said. She said Joint Codes Enforcement Officer Mitchell Strunk has been notified of her decision.

"I told him (Strunk) 'like hell I'm going to set them out,'" said Mrs. Kipp. She said she would even buy a trailer for one of the families to move to if necessary.

Strunk said any action on the Beers Street matter would depend on how long the families remain in the condemned structures.

"We can't tell them to go into the street," he said. "As long as an effort is being made to find them a place, we'll bend over backwards."

But if the people live in unfit conditions too long, the matter will have to go to the Stroudsburg borough solicitor, Strunk said.

In the meantime, Mrs. Kipp will continue to try and help the families. She said she has made several calls but most of the places she found ask for more rent than the families can afford.

What does Mrs. Kipp think of the codes enforcement?

"I think it's all right, but they don't take care of some of the things they should. Look at the ice house. It's been there 17 years. It's not right to do against one and not another."

Mrs. Kipp said she had been painting the properties every spring until a few years ago. Now, she said, she sends paint over and the tenants do the work themselves.

She said she makes very little profit on the houses and trailers. "I figure I'm charging a fair rent."

Can the houses be repaired to meet housing code standards?

"If you put a lot of money into them," Mrs. Kipp said. "I can't see it. At our age we need a little security."

Mrs. Kipp, 62, received her first social security check Friday. Her husband, Evan, is 71.

She said there were hot water tanks in the houses, but the tenants couldn't afford to buy the gas. One of the reasons the properties were condemned was because there was no hot water.

Mrs. Kipp said she bought the coal for the houses and trailers in her name and allowed the tenants to pay her back.

She also said she has helped all of her tenants with loans at one time or another. "I do feel sorry for them."

Knock, Knock!

An unidentified woman passenger was treated and released at the General Hospital of Monroe County after this car, owned by Mr. and Mrs. James Reynolds, of East Stroudsburg R.D. 2, slipped into gear while it was left parked and running at the Sixth Street, Stroudsburg branch of the Northeastern National Bank. Mrs. Reynolds was in the bank completing an errand when the mishap occurred. Stroudsburg Borough Police are investigating. (Staff photo by Rod MacLeod)

Renfro, Shoemaker repeat wins

Cardinals cop two L-N titles

NAZARETH — Jim Renfro of East Stroudsburg and Bangor's Dave Shoemaker repeated as Lehigh-Northampton League track champions Friday night during the league's annual meet.

The pair was among four area winners.

Renfro repeated his 11-6 performance of last year to win the pole vault while Shoemaker high jumped 6-2. He won last year with a 6-0.

Rich Wescott and Jack Fallenstein, both of Pocono Mountain, took individual titles. Wescott won the discus in 139-8 1/2 and also finished third in the shot put. Fallenstein took the 100-yard dash in 10.1.

Nick Corkins of Bangor finished second in the 100-yard dash and fourth in the long jump. Dan Simms of East Stroudsburg took second in the long jump and Todd Samet of East Stroudsburg finished second in the shot put. Pen Argyl's Mark Wimmer finished second in the discus.

Pocono Mountain had two third place winners in Woody LaBar in the pole vault and Wescott. Jack Zimmerman of East Stroudsburg finished third in the 100-yard dash, while Rock Lameo of Pen Argyl placed third in the triple jump.

Shoemaker also took a fourth in the triple jump. Mitch Overpeck of Pleasant Valley took fourth in the high jump and fifth in the 220-yard dash. Mark Pollicelli of Bangor took a fourth in the 440-yard dash.

Pocono Mountain had two fifth place winners in Jack Rader in the 440-yard dash and Tom Allen in the high jump.

Saucon Valley dethroned Parkland as the team champion with 32 1/3 points. Pocono Mountain finished fifth with 21 1/3, Bangor sixth with 19, East Stroudsburg seventh with 18, Pen Argyl 11th with four and Pleasant Valley 12th with three.

B-Bangor: ES-East Stroudsburg; N-Nazareth; PAL-Palmyra; PAR-Parkland; PA-Pen Argyl; PM-Pocono Mountain; S-Saucon Valley; SL-Southern Lehigh; W-Wilson.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Roles in Broadway musicals have been elusive for John Raitt, who starred so brilliantly in the original "Carousel" hit. So John took that great Rodgers & Hammerstein hit on tour. The management gives John the best dressing rooms, proper top billing, anything he wants. The producer — John Raitt.

The Astor Theater ended its revival run of the G-rated "Ten Commandments" — and followed it with a fifth-rated "X" flick, "Personals" ...

Heave a huge sigh of relief — the caviar shortage has ended: Arnold Hansen-Strum, pres. of Romanoff Caviar, just returned from Iran and promptly reported to us that more than enough precious Beluga is being airlifted to him now to more than cover current shortages.

The street peddlers, who illegally turn 5th Avenue sidewalks into blockades, give it a rundown look, and take customers away from the rent and tax-paying shops, get a lot of sympathy from passersby as they're loaded into police vans and hauled off. But it's a nagging Manhattan problem. The city's Economic Development Administration plans to seize peddlers' merchandise. To dispel anyone suspecting they're sad types there to pick up a dollar or two recession money, please be advised the EDA surveyed the average sales of such street peddlers and they take in more than $300 a day! Many do better.

Dick Cavett's a star all right: he now even has his own disease — he's been named national chairman of the Concerned Youth for Cerebral Palsy ... Over the decades, stars have added charities, mostly illness-fighters, to their activities. Winchell created the Damon Runyon Fund, Ed Sullivan has the Heart Fund, etc.

Victor Borge has an ambivalent attitude toward his Danish accent: "When I talk I can't hear an accent. But when I listen to a radio or TV tape, it's there."

The fine Manhattan nightclubs and hotel supper clubs can't lure big stars any more. Can't afford the fees demanded. Sammy Davis, for instance, just played the Westbury, Long Island, Music Fair and wound up with about $200,000 of a total $323,000 theater gross for two weeks. Only Las Vegas can compete ... Ergo, the Persian Room of the Plaza had a $5,000 to $7,500 top price on acts and the St. Regis Maisonette, $5,000; that's not as much as a Davis can earn in one Music Fair show.

"Day of the Jackal" author Frederick Forsyth just finished another, "The Odessa File," due next fall from Viking, whose president, Tom Guinzberg, is irate at a N.Y. publishing combine that tried to hustle it away from his firm ... Newly elected book-publisher's Pres. Robert Bernstein can't understand why the annual book awards aren't on TV: "About a year ago when I turned on TV I found I was watching the Patsy Awards. They're for the Best Animal Actor of the Year! When I become chairman of the Association of American Publishers, I intend to telephone the best animal actor and ask him how he got on."

It was a rainy off-night at all midtown restaurants, so Gold Coin owner Bill Chan and Pen & Pencil proprietor John Bruno walked over to Danny Stradella's Hideaway and advised Danny: "Our joints are so packed we haven't even a table for ourselves to have dinner." Looking around at the snow-blinding tablecloths, Bill Chan added, "Can you take care of us?"

Ann Landers

Shape up? How?

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I have been married four years. Before we married I thought she was the most beautiful woman I'd ever seen, as well as the most intelligent and thoughtful. I was sure she'd be the ideal wife and mother. I never dreamed she had a lazy bone in her body.

Everything has changed. My dinner used to be on the table at 5:30. Now, I'm lucky if I see it by 6:15. My wife used to be a fabulous cook. Now, I think she has a contest with herself to see how fast she can throw a meal together. I'd like to have a nickel for every time I've had to ask her to iron a shirt before I leave for work in the morning.

We have four children, the youngest is three months. I'd love to come home to a clean house, a decent meal, and enjoy my little family. Is that asking too much? If you say it is, I'll never gripe again. Or, should I lay down the law and tell my wife to shape up or find someone who doesn't mind living like a slob. You decide.

Mike In Hammond

Dear Mike: So you think maybe you ought to tell her to "shape up?" A woman who has had four babies in less than four years hasn't had much chance to think of her shape, Bub. How much help have you given her — except for contributing to her pregnancies?

I'm not defending the girl's poor housekeeping or the late meals, but I am suggesting that maybe she has her hands full with the four little ones and you might give her a lift instead of being so critical. Those "lazy" bones in her body may be tired bones. And by the way, if Planned Parenthood isn't against your religion, I recommend it.

Dear Ann Landers: Who is your expert on geography? Is he on vacation? In a recent column you mentioned Asheville, North Carolina. You said, "You are THERE and I am in Chicago — 1500 miles away — and you ask ME to solve a problem that could be settled with a simple sentence."

Ann, Baby — Asheville, North Carolina is 700 miles from Chicago. Get with it.

Tape Measure Harry

Dear Harry: For shame. I goofed. By 800 miles. Will you settle for ten raps with a varnished yardstick?

Ask her yourself

By Jean Adams

YES OR NO? (Q). I really dig this girl. I started noticing her when all her friends started telling me she wanted to date me. They told me over and over.

Well, we were at this party and I asked her for her phone number. She said, "Why should I give it to you?" I told her, "Well, if you don't want to you don't have to." She said she was just joking, but she didn't give me the number.

Finally a week later she did give it to me and we had one date. She acted as if she enjoyed it. But her friends started telling me she didn't want to date me any more.

Do you think she really doesn't or is just playing hard to get or what?

Puzzled in Alabama

tion isn't necessarily factual. Ask the girl for another date. If she says no and refuses you a rain check, she isn't interested. If she says yes she is.

KISS COURSE? (Q). I am desperate. I am 19 and do not know how to kiss a boy. Could you please tell me how? My best friend introduced me to a boy I like and I think he likes me. But what if he wants to kiss me?

No Experience in North Carolina

(A). Let him. It is never too late to learn, they say. Experience is the best teacher.

The bidding:

Opening lead — nine of diamonds.

Bridge is an easy game — if you always make the right bid and the right play at the right time. Fortunately, the right bids and plays are usually not difficult to figure out; the really hard part is to play without error, bid after bid, play after play, and hand after hand.

Take this deal from a Masters Pair Championship. It was played by Emma Jean Hawes of North Worth, Texas. She was in four hearts and didn't do anything exceptionally remarkable — all she did was do the right thing whenever it was her turn.

But what she did must have been very, very good, because all the others who played the hand either failed to reach four hearts or neglected to make it when they did.

West led a diamond and Mrs. Hawes made her first good play when she won the trick in her hand, not the dummy. She had already determined her course of action, and this included winning the diamond with the queen.

She next cashed three trumps, led a spade, and finessed the nine. Why the nine? We'll come back to that in a moment.

East won with the queen and played the A-K-Q of clubs. Mrs. Hawes ruffed, returned a diamond, and led the king of spades. East covered, establishing the jack, and Mrs. Hawes was later able to discard a diamond on the spade jack.

The bidding accounted for the unusual triple spade finesse. East's notrump overcall had indicated 16 to 18 points and he therefore had to have the A-Q of spades. Playing the jack or king from dummy was bound to be futile, while playing the nine would be enormously successful if West had the ten.

The reasoning was surely not complicated; all that the hand required was a cool head at the helm.

No more is sex dirty word

NEW YORK (UPI)—Thirty years ago books on sex were covered with plain paper when read in public. At home, they were read behind locked doors. They were hidden from the children. Sex was a dirty word.

Times have changed and sex isn't a dirty word any more. The current dirty word is death, according to A. Alvarez, author of "The Savage God" (Random House). The book is about suicide and within one month of its publication in the United States has made one best seller list and appears headed for others.

"Death is a dirty subject and I'm bringing it out of the cupboard, taking a look at it in daylight and blowing the dust off it," Alvarez said in an interview.

Alvarez, a native of London, is poetry editor of The Observer. He has spent much time on both sides of the Atlantic and came to delve into suicide when Sylvia Plath, the American poetess and an acquaintance of his, took her life in 1962. Once the noted English poet tried to do himself in—but missed the chance to be one of the 1000 successful suicides a day, estimated by the World Health Organization.

Alvarez was out of it for 72 hours. Upon recovery he realized that his discontent with life stemmed from the "childish expectation" of happiness—so much happiness for so much unhappiness, so much pleasure for so much pain.

"But life isn't that way," he said.

His suicide attempt taught him that unhappiness is merely a condition of life which one must learn to live with, like the weather.

"Once I had accepted that there weren't ever going to be any answers, even in death, I found to my surprise that I didn't much care whether I was happy or unhappy; problems and the problems of problems no longer existed. And that in itself is already the beginning of happiness."

The suicide attempt, according to Alvarez, taught him also that sooner or later one's got to accept life as it is. "I expect less now than I did before my suicide attempt," he said.

The poet isn't a collector of statistics on suicide, believing "statistics" usually are wrong. About suicide, he reported, these things are pretty well proved:

—Early summertime is the most popular time for self-destruction.

—Contrary to popular belief, those who attempt suicide and fail often try it again. Also, those who threaten suicide often carry out the threat.

—Disappointment in love is a less frequent reason for suicide than the lack of money. The decade between the ages of 55 and 65 is the favored time of life for the act, not passionate youth.

—Suicide is very much more common than the records show. Much conduct that authorities classify as suicidal goes down on the books as something else. The disguised ways of self-destruction include alcoholism, drug addiction, auto accidents (authorities estimate that as many as 50 per cent of auto crashes are implicated as suicidal), mountain climbing accidents.

—Women try suicide more frequently than men do but aren't as successful at it as men. Also: women try in soft ways—going out with sleeping pills, gas. Men, meanwhile, try hard ways—diving off bridges, going out windows, shooting.

The Alvarez study of suicide, surprisingly popular in the United States, hasn't been as popular in his native England. The author attributes this to the English habit of being able to ignore the subject. He also attributes it to the American trend to "openness about everything."

"And I will not discount," he said, "the temper of the times. We are living in self-destructive times. In human consciousness we have something quite new, something never before to contemplate—the possibility of global suicide through a pushed button."

He was referring to the accidental or deliberate launching of World War III. Global Suicide.

ATTENTION LOT OWNERS!
WHY YOU SHOULD CHOOSE A HOME FROM

LLOYD'S OF PENNSYLVANIA

Many people ask us, "How can you build a 3-bedroom, all aluminum home, for $14,990." It's a logical question because you generally relate quality with price. With most products there is a definite relationship, but in our case we believe you will be interested to know how we can build and sell our quality home at the low price which we do.

FIRST, we build 20 different style homes. They are not pre-cut, pre-fabricated but custom built. Our construction crews are thoroughly trained on OUR HOMES, which result in great labor savings.

SECOND, when you build as many homes as we do (We're one of Northeast Pa.'s LARGEST BUILDERS), we buy a large amount of materials and our savings are consequently great, which is reflected in the selling price of our homes.

THIRD, we are experienced. After years of building in this area we feel now that we have the finest and most efficiently laid out home that we can come up with at such a low price.

FOURTH, we are the only builder in the area that will give you a guaranteed starting date in writing, along with a guaranteed completion date in writing.

LASTLY, we try hard. We are vitally interested in our customers and want to build them a home that both of us can be proud of.

WE WILL be happy to have you visit our model homes and see just what we put into a home. We will be glad to answer any of your questions and try to be of service to you in any way we can.

ATTENTION LOT OWNERS!
WHY YOU SHOULD CHOOSE A HOME FROM

LLOYD'S OF PENNSYLVANIA

Many people ask us, "How can you build a 3-bedroom, all aluminum home, for $14,990." It's a logical question because you generally relate quality with price. With most products there is a definite relationship, but in our case we believe you will be interested to know how we can build and sell our quality home at the low price which we do.

FIRST, we build 20 different style homes. They are not pre-cut, pre-fabricated but custom built. Our construction crews are thoroughly trained on OUR HOMES, which result in great labor savings.

SECOND, when you build as many homes as we do (We're one of Northeast Pa.'s LARGEST BUILDERS), we buy a large amount of materials and our savings are consequently great, which is reflected in the selling price of our homes.

THIRD, we are experienced. After years of building in this area we feel now that we have the finest and most efficiently laid out home that we can come up with at such a low price.
